Under current law, temporary and permanent disability benefits are subject to maximum weekly compensation rates. In addition, an injured employee may receive supplemental benefits.

2003 Assembly Bill 669, which was recommended by the Workers Compensation Advisory Council, proposes, among other things, to increase the maximum supplemental benefit for injuries occurring before May 13, 1980, and payable for weeks of disability beginning January 1, 2004.

Assembly Amendment 1 changes the date that the increased supplemental payments will be made from January 1, 2004, to the effective date of the bill.
